HEALTH SERVICES MANAGEMENT

Become a leader in health care
The health care field is rapidly expanding and changing, with jobs expected to increase by 17 percent through 2024.* Mercy College gives students unparalleled preparation to establish or expand their careers as operational leaders in this dynamic field.

The MPA/MS degrees focus on patient care, policies and the people who work in health care facilities. The courses apply general principles of business (such as finance, human resources management and strategic planning) to health care settings. They are designed for experienced clinicians, technical specialists and managers. They are also for those new to this industry who wish to gain experience and work their way up the ladder of health care administration.

MASTER OF PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION
The Master of Public Administration is a 48-credit program for those with little or no management experience seeking a broad multidisciplinary education in health service leadership. The MPA degree can also prepare current supervisors or other managers for advancement in their organizations.

MASTER OF SCIENCE
The Master of Science is a 36-credit program of study for those who already have management-level experience in health care organizations. This degree consolidates and strengthens students’ abilities, preparing them for higher level administrative positions.

CAREERS
Graduates are prepared to work as supervisors, managers or directors in all areas of community health services. Careers include client services, quality assurance, practice management and policy development. Clinicians may become directors of departments, and more experienced directors may become senior managers.
