* Note that there is no specified or recommended sequence to coursework, however with each next semester students must be increasingly aware of taking courses that complete the field requirements detailed in the Catalog, Program Handbook, and Website.

† Note that 500, which is the program's core course and which cannot be substituted with any other course, runs only in the fall. Students can take whichever fall semester they choose, but we recommend that they not take it during their first semester.

‡ Note that students must complete the program comprehensive exam between their ultimate and penultimate semesters, and so before beginning the 559 thesis tutorial course.
