I was ashamed/embarassed

It's a private matter- wanted to deal with it on my own

I was concerned others would find out

I didn't want the person who did it to get in trouble

I was afraid of retaliation from the person who did it

I was afraid of not being believed

The person who did it is well recognized at my school

I thought I would be blamed for what happened

I didn't think what happened was serious enough to talk about

I didn't think others would think it was serious

I thought people would try to tell me what to do

It would feel like an admission of failure

I didn't think others would think it was important

I didn't think others would understand

I didn't have time to deal with it due to academics, work, etc

I didn't know the reporting procedure at my school

I was afraid that I or another would be punished for other infractions or violations (e.g., underage drinking)

I did not feel the campus leadership would solve my problems

I was afraid others would harass me or react negatively toward me

I thought nothing would be done

I didn't want others to worry about me

I wanted to forget it happened

I had other things that needed my attention (e.g., classes, work)

I didn't think the school would do anything about my report

the situation (please check all that apply):

Answered: 13 Skipped: 444

ANSWER CHOICES

I stepped in and separated the people involved in the situation.

I asked the person who appeared to be at risk if they needed help.

I confronted the person who appeared to be causing the situation.

I created a distraction to cause one or more of the people to disengage from the situation.

I asked others to step in as a group and diffuse the situation.

I told someone in a position of authority about the situation.

I considered intervening in the situation, but I could not safely take action.

I followed up later to check in with the person who appeared at risk.

I decided not to take action.
